

Elements of Mind to do Crimes

Santosh S.Sathe

Lawyer

Abstract

Crime exists in all societies, and attempts to enact, enforce, or otherwise correct criminal behavior are not successful in eliminating crime. While some have concluded that crime is a necessary evil in human society, and have suggested its role in social change, an alternative view is that the cause of crime is found in the mentality of human nature. And human relationships that have troubled us since the origin of human history. Correcting these problems will effectively remove the source of crime, and create a peaceful world in which all people can realize their individual potential, and develop satisfying, harmonious relationships with others.

Introduction

Criminologists seek to understand the motivations, patterns, and characteristics of individuals who engage in illegal activities. This involves considering a variety of factors, including psychological aspects such as personality traits and mental health, sociological factors such as social structure and peer influence, and even biological factors such as genetics.

Criminology also includes the study of victims and their experiences. Victimology examines the impact of crime on individuals and communities, focusing on the physical, emotional, and economic consequences. Understanding victims is essential to developing support systems, reparation mechanisms, and policies that meet the needs of those affected by crime.

Therefore, either a person's inclinations, habits, and urges compel him to commit a crime or the circumstances are alluring, enticing, provocative or provoking and he becomes a victim of them. He cannot control himself, cannot face adverse situations, and thus gets carried away by his emotions.

Criminal psychologists try to understand the motivations of criminals and develop a psychological profile to understand or apprehend them. His approach to the psychology of crime involves examining individual criminal behaviors and diagnosing any mental health conditions

WHITE -COLLAR CRIME

White-collar criminals are charismatic. This helps them bypass security protocols and may even convince the employer not to charge them. Charisma gives white-collar criminals a higher status or position in the company at the time of their crime.

In the Indian context, white-collar crime refers to financially motivated crimes committed by persons in positions of authority or trust, often involving fraud, corruption, or financial manipulation. These crimes affect financial transactions and harm financial integrity.

White-collar crime is generally nonviolent in nature and includes public corruption, health care fraud, mortgage fraud, securities fraud, and money laundering, to name a few.

Not a crime: Some criminals convince themselves that their actions are not crimes.

The acts involved are not the same as street crimes.

Not Perceptible: Some people justify themselves in crime because they think there are government regulations. Does not understand the practical problems of competing in a free enterprise system.

Lack of awareness: One of the major reasons for white-collar crimes is a lack of awareness among people. form of this crime is different from traditional crimes and people rarely understand it even though they are the victims of crime.

Greed: Greed is another motivation for crime. Some people feel that others are also violating laws and therefore not bad if they do so.

Need: Another element of crime is need. People commit white-collar crimes for satisfaction. Support their ego or their family.

Sutherland's definition of white-collar crime has been criticized in some quarters.

It was pointed out that there is a lack of definite criteria for determining who is a 'person of responsibility and position'.

Sutherland's definition of white-collar crime is the most controversial. This seems to be what Sutherland meant. Absence of conviction for crimes other than white-collar crimes. The factor 'high social status' was used. Confusion also arises in interpretation; Obviously, its meaning is much narrower than the everyday meaning. Sutherland himself did not stick to this definition, and it also included theft and fraud committed by or even through the middle

White-collar criminal lunatics who comprehensively damage the country's economy. This is supporting Not only the economy of the country is affected by financial theft, cheating, etc. but also the financial condition. This individual hurt society. Various crimes like bribery, corruption, Money laundering

Harshad Mehta Securities Fraud (1988-1995)

Source By NEWJ

Mehta was a household name in the stock market and known as the 'Big bull of Dalal Street', so investors followed him blindly. They created a speculative market by borrowing heavily from banks and buying scrips at overpriced prices Mehta and his brothers were arrested by the CBI on 9 November 1992 for misappropriating 2.8 million shares of around 90 companies through forged share transfer forms. The total value of the share swap was put at ₹250 crore

The intensity of the Harshad Mehta scam would have been so huge that from today's perspective, it would have been worth looking at the market in Dalal Street. Looking at the figures, one person defrauded the entire nation to the tune of Rs 24,000 crore

The scale of the Harshad Mehta scam was so great that it shook Dalal Street in today's perspective. If you look at the numbers, this one man cheated the entire country to the tune of Rs 24,000 crores (which is bigger than Nirav Modi or Vijay Mallya's scams)

THIEVES / ROBBER

Crime is a major source of social anxiety not only in developing countries but worldwide today; It is a universal phenomenon that varies only in degree between different countries of the world. Then a systematic sampling technique was used to administer the questionnaire. The 2006 population data for the study was projected to 2021 using Dotson's projection formula; Robbery is the main type of crime in the study area. These and other crimes happen mostly at night. Unemployment and poor databases are major factors contributing to the level of crime in the area. In the field of pain and suffering studies, crime has a major impact on victims, to be a safe place for residents, crime should be considered a public health concern. Work should also be done on hotspots to reduce incidents of crime. There should be arrangements for dealing with crime victims to minimize the impact on their mental health. Physical elements that encourage crime should be demolished or redeveloped for the common good of the residents. All of these things and more will reduce the likelihood of a crime or incident becoming a crime victim.

Why does a thief steal now? Because they are lazy. They don't want to work for it. They are not thieves but in some ways they are. Even the smartest thief knows what will happen when caught. Most thefts are related to internal feelings of inadequacy. Almost everyone has this inner feeling of lack, but only to a certain extent. This is probably a bit like the psychology of a cheater. If he thinks about it he probably won't do it. For those thieves who were unlucky, I know that stealing and getting away with it was almost an addiction or quite an addiction. The satisfaction of getting away with something in exchange for something boosts their self-esteem for a short period, I'm talking about professional thieves, not someone who is stealing food from a shop to feed his family. A fun fact is that stealing a valuable or big item is not easy. You wouldn't even call this a minimum-wage job. Sometimes a thief keeps what he steals... a phone, chain, maybe a TV, anything. Although most of the time they sell it, the problem is that people who steal will not answer it truthfully because they are not honest otherwise they would not steal. They make excuses like, maybe the person has to do it to survive or they have some mental illness, which I think both cases are unusual from the perspective of someone living in India. Many people have had their money stolen from them at one time or another. Maybe they parked their bike somewhere and locked it. They come back and the bike is gone and they wonder what could be going through the mind of whoever stole their bike. The truth is that most people who steal do so because they are greedy and selfish. They do this because they have justified stealing despite knowing that it is wrong.

Charles Sobhraj

(Photo Source By Navesh Chitraka)

But did you know that India has its version of Charles Sobhraj? His name is Dhani Ram Mittal and he is one of the most clever and cunning thieves in the history of the country. Dhani Ram Mittal has been involved in more than 130 vehicle theft cases over the years.

He was a charismatic man, fluent in several languages and he befriended the girls, mentoring them, first spiking their drinks. Later he used to steal all the cash and valuables from them

Sobhraj claimed that most of his murders were caused by accidental drug overdoses of temazepam and heroin, but investigators say that the victims threatened to expose Sobhraj, which was the motive for his murders.

The words of Charls Shohraj said "I've never killed anyone in my life. His tone was typical, even as he said: "I have taken the passport, used the passport, stolen some money. But I never killed people." Shubhra alleges that he was framed for the murders and had never entered Nepal before 2003. He claims he is a "victim" of what he says is a corrupt criminal justice system.

(Photo Source by Tom Stoddart in Sudan)

If this person was stealing bread, what would you conclude about the reason for which he was stealing bread?

Common reasons for stealing:

Necessity/survival: I have no money and if I or my children do not eat we die.

Greed: I don't want more stuff than everyone else, but I don't want to pay for it either.

Laziness: It's easier to take things for granted than to get them done correctly.

Excitement: I can buy it but it's so much fun to have it without anyone knowing

Criminal Career: I specialize in theft and am good at it, it's my job

In India, the Pardhi Community exists in Madhya Pradesh

Activists and community members allege that even after 70 years of independence, the Pardhis, classified as a criminal tribe by the British, are not truly free.

A Pardhi woman has put up a poster asking the police not to pick up people from their homes while they are sleeping.

Pardhis are the only community in Madhya Pradesh that falls into different categories, while other tribes are included in one category.

The police come to their homes without a warrant whenever they want and take them to the police station. Police abuse women and children and even beat them when they resist. According to the police, they are a burden on society and should be killed if so.

in such an environment we can understand the state of mind of the Pardhi community. So what should be the attitude of the Pardhi community towards this society? They will be punished even if they steal and punished even if they don't.

When we have such a state of mind, we should think about how we can overcome it.

To understand a thief, it is important to know his habits, nature and mental state, as well as his financial condition.

An example is that if you do not give sufficient money to your wife at home, she will take it from your purse. This example seems simple but it is not so simple. It shows the gap between demand and supply. This is the beginning of crime. Demand and supply is a symbol of any crime. Due to this deficiency, people start to steal. the supply can be any type some want to be fun, some want wealth, and some want to become rich. We can also call supply as desired. We cannot put every theft in the same category. There is a different reason behind every theft.

LUSTFULL CRIMINALS

Rape is an assault. Although it takes a sexual form, it is really about a person with low self-esteem who feels powerless and angry and takes those feelings out on others in order to delude themselves that they are not hurt, wounded, and angry. Many people try to blame themselves for their behavior, possibly because they grew up in a society where they were told that women were responsible for men's attitudes or jobs. This is just a glimpse so that the person does not have to take responsibility for his suggestion and action as it would require some kind of mental effort. just do not do it. It can be difficult to think things through and control your actions. worst 5-year-old do this all the time, so why can't an adult do it?

The very concept of rape is forcing another person to do something that they have an inherent right to refuse. This is fundamentally wrong. Self-determination is the most fundamental of human rights, and rape deprives another of the right to make decisions about his or her own. I hope you are not serious, but if by chance you are, that is bad because the perpetrator is violating another person without consent.

Most women live in fear of such incidents. We feel in danger because we are in danger. Rape is a devastating crime. Some women are badly injured. Some become pregnant. But emotional trauma can be worse than any physical injury.

Women who are raped have nightmares, panic attacks, waves of self-doubt, an overwhelming sense of disbelief. The lives of women who are raped are changed forever. Some people say they will never be the same, it's like dying.

Agree, this practice is as old as that. Unapproved. Rape culture is finally coming to light. There isn't much data to suggest that there are more rapes today than at any other time in history (if anything, probably less now than at any other time in history). We have the ability to hear news from around the world within minutes, reports of rape are probably becoming more frequent, and more people in the world today are willing to deal with the problem, rather than shy away from the women who were stigmatized,

And well, in some parts of the world the rapist is being urged to marry the woman. Feminism is on the rise again, so we hear more about abuse against women.

Rape is more than a physical act. It is driven by a desire to shame the victim and turn them from a human being to an object. What's worse, the rapists surveyed say that raping their victims gives them a sense of power and control.

And, I dare say, the society we live in promotes this mentality in a very casual and harmless way.

Rape is more than a physical act. It is driven by a desire to shame the victim and turn them from a human being to an object. What's worse, the rapists surveyed say that raping their victims gives them a sense of power and control.

Society encourages women to be submissive and raising any voice against patriarchy is considered immoral. Attempts to perform any activity suitable for boys such as dating, having multiple partners and voluntary sex are labeled as being 'slutty'.

There is one thing that all rapists enjoy. Power.

They are some of the most power-hungry people you will ever meet, who only want to see other people bend to their will and there is no better way to do that than by forcing them to please you. Of course, there are some people who are sadists who enjoy seeing the pain of others (I came into contact with them being one of them) and will do so only for the dual effect of sadism and pleasure.

And, I dare say, that the society we live in promotes this mentality in a very casual and harmless way. hey are brainless (mind has been hijacked) proceed carefully. and expect the girl to have an orgasm after the rape. and they do this by forcing her to scream. Let's try to see how much power she has. Unfortunately, she cries. Don't get into this. This is pure draining behavior.

Nirbhaya incident

(Photo Source By Nirbhaya A Short Film Presented by small Filmz on YouTube)

After the Nirbhaya incident, big promises were made in the country regarding women's safety. 'From strict laws to panic buttons' to stop crimes against women.

Statement of accused

Singh said He was driving the bus in which the attack took place. He has been sentenced to death and has always denied taking part in the attack.

However, he said the rape was the 23-year-old student's fault, and said she might still be alive today if she had not fought back.

Singh said that hanging him and the other convicts in the case would put rape victims at greater risk because now when girls are raped, they will not spare the victim "like we did" but will kill her. Singh said that hanging him and the other convicts in the case would put rape victims at greater risk because now when girls are raped, they will not spare the victim "as we did" but will kill her.

A rapist lodged in Tihar jail claimed that a 5-year-old girl 'provoked' him to rape her.

Madhumita Pandey, Doctoral Ph.D. A student in Britain conducted research by interviewing 100 rapists in Tihar. This 23-year-old man was one of them.

When she further asked him how the 5-year-old girl provoked him, he said that the younger girl touched him inappropriately, so he decided to teach her a lesson. She was a small beggar who used to sit outside the temple.

When asked further he said that his only regret was that the girl was no longer a virgin, hence no longer 'pure', so he planned to marry her as soon as he came out of jail.

Now what do you think, what is his mentality? He is not a martyr, he belongs to the same society in which we live.

Pandey concluded the following after his research:

Very few rapists were educated or graduated from high school.

She expected them to be monstrous and paranormal, but to her surprise, they seemed normal.

However, their basic mentality and thought process were conservative or backward towards women.

Many of them did not even regret their actions.

She says, "When you talk to [rapists], it shocks you – these people have the power to make you feel sorry for them. As a woman, you don't expect to feel that way. . I would almost forget that these men have been convicted of raping a woman. In my experience, a lot of these men don't realize that what they have done is rape. They don't understand what consent is.

People say that sex is taboo in India, yet there is a lot of overpopulation and rape.

Don't you think that the reason for such high population and rape in India is that sex is taboo here?

Insane and Serial killer

Criminal insanity refers to a mental illness or disease that makes it impossible for a defendant to know that they are committing a crime or to understand that their actions are wrong. This is based on the discussion of the traditionally accepted insanity test or definition. the concept of mental illness and discusses the relationship between psychiatry and law. Psychiatric and legal terms are compared, focusing on the characteristics of the actual theory and practice of psychiatry by identifying similarities between psychiatric and criminological approaches.

Serial killers differ in many ways, including their motivations for killing and their behavior at the crime scene. However, attendees identified some common traits in serial killers, including sensation seeking, lack of remorse or guilt, impulsivity, need for control, and predatory behavior.

Superficial Charm: A common trait among serial killers is their ability to charm and manipulate others.

Lack of empathy

- Childhood trauma
- Bedwetting and animal cruelty
- Imagination and Obsession
- Pathological lying
- Narcissism
- Escalating Violence

Dr. Scott Bohn wrote in his book that serial killers are born that way or are they a product of their environment for them. Serial killers characteristically lack empathy for others and an apparent absence of guilt for their actions. At the same time, many can be superficially charming, allowing them to lure potential victims into their web of destruction. Serial killers are individuals in whom two minds coexist—a rational self, capable of successfully navigating the complexities of acceptable social behavior. In which two or more personalities coexist in a person's mind, apparently unaware of each other.

Recent brain imaging studies have shown that criminal psychopaths have reduced connectivity between the brain regions that process negative stimuli and the regions that give rise to fearful reactions.

THE NITHARI KAND

(Photo Source by NDTV)

Also known as the Noida serial murders, this series of crimes left more than 16 victims. Moninder Singh Pandher and his servant Surinder Koli were initially charged with the murder after the parents of the missing children complained about the negligence of the local police.

Meri Bhi Ichcha Hoti Thi, Mere Andar Ka Shaitaan Jag Utha Tha (I also had a strong desire, the demon in me would wake up). Kohli is believed to have said this during the Test, according to a charge sheet filed by the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI), Koli was a necrophiliac—an interest in having sex with corpses—and a disorder called necrophagic, in which a person eats human flesh.

Accuse Koli noted during the trials that "call girls" came to the house "almost every night" and, watching from the doorhole, he found it difficult to control his urges.

The report further states that Koli would dream of a girl in a white dress teasing him, which would harass him emotionally until he would suffer rape and then murder to get some relief from his distress. I would have got it.

Conclusion

Criminal People's Minds doesn't shy away from exploring the darker aspects of human behavior. From deplorable methods of torture to complex murder schemes, and shows the horrific reality of what some individuals are capable of. Although these incidents are disturbing, they are a reminder of the importance of understanding criminal behavior. Understanding the motivations of a serial killer is important not only for the motives but also for real-life law enforcement agencies. By studying the psychology behind their actions, investigators can better predict their next move and prevent further harm